A MISSIONARY HEART

Today’s liturgy questions the comfortable position of Christians who think that it’s enough to just be good without trying to be better, Christians who do not lift a finger to make the world a better place. Being missionaries is part of the essence of our calling, just like the simple friars who evangelized the new world five centuries ago, or the missionary youth and families of our own time who go from door to door reaching out to those whose faith has faded. Christ died to ransom each and every person. At the end of the parable of the lost sheep, Jesus reminds us that salvation is for all people: “It is the Father’s will that not one of these little ones be lost.”

Sisters and Brothers

1. To whom shall we be missionaries? To those who are farthest away. “The farthest away” are the non-believers, the inconstant Christians, and the indifferent. They are all who live in a state of existential disgust. Deep down they are waiting for someone to tell them about the Lord and bring them closer to Him. All men, whether they know it or not, are seeking God, and even as they stumble onwards, they hope to find Him.

A Christian’s attitude must be one of openly looking for God in these brethren who are far from God, and of accompanying them on the path of salvation. To discover the face of Christ en every human being, regardless of their situation, their past, or their state of life.

2. Our missionary outreach to our distanced brethren must be marked by open and respectful dialogue, carried out with gradually, with intelligence and patience. We must not be rigid. Faith is proposed, not imposed. We must be open to all men, without any discrimination based on race, culture, or religion. Nevertheless, this does not mean we turn our missionary zeal into “indifferent syncretism”. This would lead us to accept all sorts of things against the faith and deny or diminish the values of salvation that Jesus Christ brought to us.

3. Not all of us have the chance to travel to far-off lands, cultures, or religions, but yes, we can still live out our missionary calling in the most familiar circumstances. We can be missionaries in our family, our work, our social life, and any place where we can promote what unites us and fight against division and alienation.

This attitude of communion becomes visible when we are able to see the positive in others, when we embrace them and value them as a gift from God in our life. It means knowing how to give our brothers and sisters space and help them carry their burdens. It means rejecting the selfish temptations that constantly beset us, engendering competition, mistrust, and envy.

Sisters and Brothers: May the Word of God commit us to be better Christians in our daily life by being open with sympathy and trust to all our brothers and sisters, believers and non-believers, leaving aside any kind of aggressive attitude. The world needs coherent and attractive witnesses of Christian life: The Lord tells us, “Do this and you will live.” Source: ePriest.com / Best Practices nd Homily Resources for Catholic Priests

Palabras del Párroco

Domingo, 16 de agosto de 2026 – Vigésimo domingo en tiempo ordinario - Ciclo A
Lecturas: Isaías 56, 1. 6-7, Salmo 66, “O God, let all the nations praise you!”, Romanos 11, 13-15. 29-32, Mateo 15, 21-28

CORAZÓN MISIONERO

La liturgia de hoy cuestiona las posiciones cómodas de los cristianos a los que les basta ser buenos pero que no se esfuerzan por ser mejores, ni mueven un dedo para mejorar el mundo. En la esencia de nuestra vocación está el ser misioneros, como los primeros frailes que evangelizaron el nuevo mundo hace cinco siglos, o como los jóvenes y las familias misioneras de hoy que van de puerta en puerta acercándose a los que tienen su fe empolvada. Cristo murió para rescatarlos a todos. Al final de la parábola de la oveja perdida Jesús nos recuerda que la salvación es para todos: “Es voluntad del Padre que no se pierda ni uno sólo de estos pequeños”.

Hermanas y hermanos:

1. ¿A quienes hay que misionar? A los más lejanos. “Los lejanos” son los no creyentes, los cristianos inconstantes, los indiferentes. Todos ellos viven en una condición de disgusto existencial y, en el fondo, están esperando que alguien les hable del Señor y los acerque a Él. Los hombres, consciente o inconscientemente buscan a Dios y a tropezones intentan encontrarlo.

La actitud del cristiano tiene que ser abiertamente la de buscar a Dios en estos hermanos alejados y acompañarlos en el camino de la salvación. Descubrir el rostro de Cristo en todo ser humano, sea cual sea su situación, su pasado, su estado de vida.

2. Nuestro acercamiento misionero a los hermanos lejanos, debe estar marcado por el diálogo abierto y respetuoso, llevado con inteligencia, paciencia y gradualidad, nunca con rigorismo. La fe se propone, no se impone. Apertura a todos los hombres, sin ninguna discriminación racial, cultural o religiosa. Sin embargo, esto no significa convertir el celo misionero en un “sincretismo indiferenciado” que nos llevaría a aceptar cualquier cosa ajena a la fe y a rene- gar o a disminuir los valores de la salvación que nos trajo Jesucristo.

3. No todos tenemos la oportunidad de acceder a otras culturas o países o religiones lejos de nuestro ámbito cultural, pero sí podemos hacer realidad nuestra vocación misionera en los ambientes más cercanos como la familia, el trabajo, las relaciones sociales, donde debemos promover lo que une y luchar contra las divisiones y alejamientos.

Esta actitud de comunión se hace visible cuando somos capaces de ver lo positivo que hay en el otro, para acogerlo y valorarlo como un regalo de Dios: un don para mí. Es saber dar espacio al hermano, llevando mutuamente la carga de los otros y rechazando las tentaciones egoístas que continuamente nos asechan y engendran competitividad, ganas de hacer carrera, desconfianza y envidias.

Hermanas y hermanos: Que la Palabra de Dios nos comprometa a ser mejores cristianos en la vida diaria estando abiertos con simpatía y confianza a todos nuestros hermanos, creyentes y no creyentes, dejando de lado cualquier actitud agresiva. El mundo necesita testimonios de vida cristiana coherente y atractiva. “Haz esto y vivirás” nos dice el Señor. Recurso: ePriest.com / Best Practices and Homily Resources for Catholic Priests

Oración por el Nuevo año académico

Nuestras oraciones para los estudiantes para que el Señor les ayude en este nuevo año, que los ayude a discernir a las presiones de grupos, respetan a los compañeros y profesores y entiendan que el poder ir a la Universidad es una oportunidad que no todos las personas tienen y que deben aprovecharla.

Por los profesores y asesores para que ayuden a encaminar a los estudiantes por el buen camino y dales las fuerzas para enfrentar los problemas diarios y poder lidiar con las dificultades. A darle animos y fuerzas para que ejerzan su vocación.

Para los padres para que junto a los profesores encaminen sus hijos a un buen futuro, a poder lidiar con las dificultades, a apoyar a sus hijos en lo relacionado en la Universidad y tengan y enseñen respeto por los profesores y personal universitario..

Por personas con malas intenciones hacia la comunidad universitaria y escolar para que encuentren a Dios y tengan una mente limpia y sana.

Por un buen ambiente universitario lleno de cordialidad entre toda la comunidad.

Dios les bendiga.
Amen
